"The Playbook has served as an invaluable resource guide for the NFL community. More importantly, it has amplified the positive stories penned by our tight-knit community. The Playbook is a refreshing read, and much needed departure from the stereotypes of professional athletes and their families."
Tommy & Troy Vincent

"After reading The Playbook, Michael and I saw the inspiration, dedication and perseverance in every article. Thank you, Cynthia, for the opportunities you have allowed us to partake in!
We are HUMBLLED!"
Rachel McKenzie

"Each year, I look forward to the release of The Playbook. It's always fun to see who in our NFL family will be featured and to check out the different programs and events discussed in the articles. Typically, we hear about the performance of an active or a former player on the field, but The Playbook gives us a behind-the-scenes look at what work is being done 'off the field,' yep that was a shameless plug there. As president of Off the Field Players' Wives Association, I am thankful for the opportunity to share information about our organization and the difference we make in the lives of our NFL families and the community. This magazine is the perfect catalyst to introduce us to people that may not have known we exist or may not know what we do. I am anxiously awaiting the next issue. I absolutely love The Playbook!"
Ericka Lassiter

"The Playbook is a such a valuable tool for the football community. It has in-depth information that is important for players, legends and their families and presents it in a way that is compelling and easy to apply to your own experience. Cynthia and team have always been great to work with and truly have a heart to serve the football community."
Tracy Perlman

"The Playbook is a valuable publication for all active and former NFL players. From profiles on the lives of former players, financial planning tools for current players, insights on how players can transition to other football related jobs and much more, The Playbook is first class from cover to cover."
Mitchell Joseph

"As a sister to two former NFL players, I care deeply about the NFL community. When I read the first volume of The Playbook, I was so impressed with its presentation. It was beautifully curated and contained so much useful information; I referred to it several times throughout the year. It was a joy to be featured in the second volume. The interviewer asked such thoughtful questions about my journey, and I appreciated the opportunity to include pictures of our amazing team at the Football Players Health Study at Harvard University. The picture of my parents was a really special part of the feature. I am thankful for their love and support, which laid the foundation for me to become the woman I am today. By the way, I gasped when I saw the article."
Alicia J. Whittington

"The Playbook is a great resource for NFL news that you won't find anywhere else. The Playbook's creative approach to covering the business of football, as well as personal stories of extraordinary individuals within the league, is outstanding."
Joe Blaney

"The Playbook is an amazing resource for players and their families. I personally like the old-school feel of the magazine - so much of what we read lives on our phones, so it is nice to sit down and thumb through the pages. Both volumes, I and II, sit on my coffee table. I can't wait for this year's edition!"
Carla Lide-Buglione

"I'm so happy about this publication. The Playbook is so beautiful and done so well. I'm glad the NFL is leading on this, bringing all of the groups together. I'm excited that everyone participates. It's one of the few places where we can all kind of kumbaya on player services."
Andre Collins
